US-24 Bridge in Clay Center nears Construction Completion (revised)

Beginning today, Monday, April 29, 2013, in Clay Center KDOT will be completing the Polymer Overlay's on the bridge on Hwy-24 over Huntress Creek and also the Court Street Bridge both in Clay Center. This is the last component to finalize the US-24 bridge project. The overlay was not completed before opening the roadway to traffic last fall because of the temperature restrictions with the polymer. The contractor will be utilizing a lane drop with temporary signals and will complete one lane at a time for both bridges. They are starting with the bridge on Hwy 24 and will complete it before moving over to the Court Street Bridge. The contractor plans to be complete within 2-weeks dependent upon the weather.

A. M. Cohron & Son Inc. of Atlantic, IA, is the prime contractor. Cost for this project is $4,994,651.18.
